Participation in Postsecondary Programs among Incarcerated Individuals

The Washington Student Achievement Council (WSAC) contracted with WSIPP to conduct a study examining participation in postsecondary programs among incarcerated individuals. The study will assess rates of program participation and completion among incarcerated individuals and how these rates vary across race, gender, and facility. This study will also identify practices that can promote or inhibit participation in education programs while incarcerated.

The final report is due on June 30, 2021.
